ADVENTURES IN PRINT

Often tucked away within the back pages of many newspapers and magazines are the Classified Ads, and more specifically, those of the Personal adverts. These adverts maybe sometimes overlooked, but they never fail to interest even the passer-by. Each advert carries its own level of optimism and hope, whether it's from the advertiser or the seeker. Both want some control and change to invade their lives.

The personal column is the place to find your heart's desires and/or fill your craven lusts of all things deliciously naughty. It's all there for the curious and interested amongst us. It's a place where dreams are laid bare and where desires triumph over current morals, to uplift the individual. Amongst the mundane and the unoriginal, one can find adverts which reveal intimate information (personal and/or desires) which in some publications will involve a variety of fantasies. In bygone days, a glossary detailing the fantasies would have been essential for the uninitiated, as they tip toed through a menu of sexual tristes. However in these enlightened times, it is a different matter as more is accepted. These days life doesn't start or end with GSOH.

This book focuses on adverts from woman; their searches, desires, wants and peccadillos.

Personal adverts and their appeal continue to thrive in all mediums and are universal, even if the language is different, the meanings remain the same.

Here, as in the media, by numbering the adverts, availability is assured. And the unknown becomes ever more appetising.

Pick a number. Take a chance.
